Madras-14. It is believed that the bird is a hybrid + therefore + it is not difficult to distinguish it from both the commoner + less well known species. The bird has got a very long tail + is very similar to the Red-tailed Tropicbird but is easily distinguished by its shorter wings + longer tail. The bird is about 100 cm. long + has a dark greyish brown back + white belly. The wings are black with a large white patch at the base of the wing + a small white patch near the tip. The tail is long and deeply forked. The legs are black + the bill is long and slightly curved. The bird is found in the Indian Ocean + is a rare visitor to the Maldives.
